Tinley Park EEC to host electronics recycling event

Do you have old electronics sitting around the house? Free the clutter for a good cause!

The Tinley Park Environmental Enhancement Commission (EEC) has partnered with eWorks to host an electronics recycling event from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4 in the garage at Tinley Park Public Works, 7980 W. 183rd St.

Residents and small business owners can bring small electronics to have them properly recycled, free of charge. Television sets and monitors will be recycled for $25 (20 inches and smaller) or $35 (21 inches and larger).

“Join the EEC in the fight to reduce the waste that ends up in landfills and help make our environment a healthier place for ourselves and future generations,” EEC Chairman Antonio Halek said.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the developmentally disabled. For more information, including what items will and won’t be accepted, please visit www.tinleypark.org and click on the “Electronics Recycling Event” quick link on the right.
